

ANNIE'S ROMANCE ENDS IN HER DEATH.

Pretty German Servant Girl Whose Employer Fell in Love with Her.

Once Urged Him to Return to His Wife, Who Was Suing Him for a Separation.

SMOTHERED HERSELF WITH GAS.

Had Gone Back to Live with Gruendler's Family and Was Driven to Suicide by the Insults of Neighbors.

Annie Kern was tired of it all, although she was only twenty-two years old and pretty. So she turned on the gas and let it smother her, and her death brought out the story of her life.

Paul Gruendler lives at No. 70 Montrose avenue, Williamsburg, and Annie was his servant girl. She came from Stuttgart, Germany, four years ago, and at once found employment with the Gruendler family. She was fairly educated, and interested in the head of the house. Gruendler is wealthy, thirty-five years old and has a young wife.

It was not until a year ago that Mrs.
Gruendler began to get suspicious. A stormy scene followed, and Gruendler told his wife he loved Annie. The next day the two eloped, going to a New Jersey town, where the deserted wife found them.

Mrs. Gruendler persuaded her husband to return with her to their Williamsburg home. In a day or two he took his departure again, and went to live with Miss Kern, in a house in Bergen street, Brooklyn. They were found by Edward Walters, a brother of Mrs. Gruendler, who with Mrs. Gruendler and his father went to the Bergen street house. There Gruendler was assaulted by his brother-in-law. For several days he was confined to his bed from his injuries, and soon as he was able to get about he caused Walters' arrest. The latter was fined $50 by Justice Lamberg, in the Ewen Street Police Court.

Shortly after that Gruendler and the young woman, it is alleged, took up their abode in a house on Reja avenue, where they lived until October last. Mrs. Gruendler then brought an action in the City Court for separation, and was awarded $25 a week alimony. Annie afterward urged Gruendler to return to his wife, and a reconciliation took place. In December last Gruendler and his wife were again living together. Annie had gone to her home in Germany. She returned two months ago and went to live again with Gruendler and his wife as a servant.

On Sunday Gruendler and his wife went out, leaving Annie alone at home. When they returned at 10 o'clock at night they were unable to get in. Mrs. Gruendler finally went through a neighbor's house, walked over the roof of a shed and obtained an entrance through a back window.

An odor of gas greeted her, and she called to her husband to follow her. He did so, and the two traced the odor to the room in which the girl slept. The door was locked, and they burst it open. On the bed lay the servant. A rubber tube was attached to the gas jet, and one end of it had dropped from her mouth. She was still alive, but unconscious.

A call was sent to St. Mary's Hospital for an ambulance surgeon, but before he arrived the young woman died.

On a small table in the room was a letter written by Annie. It was in German, and read:

"Mr. Gruendler-You need not worry about what I have done. It is none of your fault. You have meant well with me. You should forget all and live happily. Under such circumstances I don't want to live at any price. You know I am not bad."

The letter was turned over to Coroner Nason. According to Mr. Gruendler, Annie came from an excellent family in Germany, where she received a good education. The body will be buried to-day.

It is said that the young woman was subjected to many insults by the neighbors, which played upon her mind, and it is believed for that reason she took her life.

HER DEATH STILL A MYSTERY.

Brooklyn Police Looking for Evidence in the Case of Mrs. Schaeffer.

The Brooklyn police have been unable to discover just how Mrs. Louisa Schaeffer, of No. 150 Huron street, Greenpoint, who was drowned Saturday night in the East River at the foot of Greene street, got into the water. The husband of the woman still insists that he heard his wife's cries for help while he was running from the dock to get a policeman after he had been assaulted by Thomas Gill, one of the men now in the custody of the police, charged with homicide.

Gill, Charles O'Hara, John Nelson and Thomas Barnett, who have been arrested, will be arraigned to-day in the Ewen Street Police Court. The prisoners are all charged with homicide. They say the woman jumped into the river.

Yesterday an autopsy was made on the body, which showed that death was due to drowning. There were no marks on the body, although Coroner Nason said last night that evidence of a struggle on the dock had been discovered. The police yesterday No. 53 Bow street, told the police yesterday that the dead woman had on several occasions threatened to end her life. The inquest will be held to-morrow night.

FOR WILLIAMSBURG'S POOR.

Society of Church of Sts. Peter and Paul Gives an Excursion.

Three thousand excursionists embarked on the steamer Teller and two barges at the foot of South Fifth street, Brooklyn, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. It was the annual excursion to Oriental Grove, given for the benefit of the poor of the lower section of the Eastern District by the Holy Name Society of Sts. Peter and Paul's Church. The society has a membership of 700.

Arthur McGonigal, the treasurer of the Roman Catholic German Association of Brooklyn, one of the founders of the organization, had charge of the affair, and was assisted by John J. Carlin, Peter J. Ward, James J. McGinty, and James Lynch.

THEY VISITED NEW LONDON.

Greenport American Mechanics Had Their First Annual Outing Yesterday.

Greenport, L. I., July 20.—The Junior Order of American Mechanics of this place went on its first annual outing to-day to New London. From the lodge room on Main street, the members marched in dole file to the steamer pier, where they boarded the mail steamer Long Island.
Nearly all the members were accompanied by ladies. At New London the mechanics met the members of the New London lodge, visited points of interest in the city, and had a shore dinner, returning by steamer this evening.

KILLED BY CARBOLIC ACID.

Autopsy in the Case of "Mrs. Gray" Who Committed Suicide in Her Brooklyn Flat.

The autopsy in the case of Alice M.
Blakeley, or "Mrs. Alice Gray," who died Sunday at No. 600 Sixth street, Brooklyn, showed that her death was caused by two drachms of carbolic acid, which she had swallowed. She was twenty-two years old and very pretty.

There was something of a romance in the unfortunate woman's life. She occupied the first flat at No. 300 Sixth street.
Her visitors were many; men most frequently. They were well dressed, but tough looking. One of them was a third-rate puncher.

A man named "Ed" Gray was another visitor. Some of the visitors were women, and pale faces and black eyes were seen.
A dozen letters were found in the young woman's bureau. A number of them had been sent to her by a man living in Cincinnati, Ohio, but the others were insincere love letters, written by her male friends.

There was also a letter of the young woman in an envelope addressed to "Mr.
Henry Blakeley, Weymouth, Modina County, Ohio." It is believed that the man addressed is either the woman's father or brother. Her admirer "Ed" called to see her Saturday night, but failed to find her home. He left in a very angry mood, saying he was weary of "being treated like a dog." A neighbor repeated this remark to "Mrs. Gray," and it is thought that it may have caused her to kill herself.

The neighbors say Mrs. Gray did not seem to have very much money, as she borrowed at intervals, but always paid her little debts. She had arranged to move to No. 12 Berkeley place, and her determination to kill herself must have been formed recently.

The body is still at Henderson's undertaking store, Jay street and Myrtle avenue. The police have wired to the woman's family at Weymouth, Ohio, for instructions.

INFORMER REINER FREE.

His Associates, Against Whom He Testified, Are in Prison; One of Them for Life.

Frederick Reiner, associate of Joseph Block and Samuel Koskowitz, the convicted burglars, was discharged by Judge Aspinall in Brooklyn yesterday. Block is under life sentence and Koskowitz under a nine years' sentence for alleged participation in a series of burglaries.

Reiner turned informer and saved himself. In moving for his discharge District Attorney Backus said:

"The police were perplexed for months prior to the arrest of Block, Koskowitz and Reiner. Many burglaries were committed.
Information was given to one of our policemen that these defendants were the leaders of an organized company, which included Russians residing in Brooklyn and New York, and that Block was the chief spirit controlling this organization."

Reiner gave so much information both for this case and other cases, that I deemed it my duty not to prosecute him after his plea of guilty to one of these burglaries, but it seemed to me that I should use against Koskowitz and Block, but Koskowitz pleaded guilty to both of the indictments and after doing so, I got a statement from him which I believed to be true, and used him as a witness. He had never been convicted of any crime."

GIRLS JUMP FOR LIFE.

Carriage from Which They Sprang Smashed by a Locomotive and Their Horse Killed.

Freeport, L. I., July 20.—Two daughters of Henry Robinson, Edith and Susie, aged sixteen and ten respectively, had a very narrow escape from instant death while driving this afternoon.

They were crossing the Long Island Railroad track at Grove street, when the fast train that leaves Long Island City at 4:30 o'clock, came thundering along.

It does not stop here, and the girls, seeing that the only possible chance of saving themselves was by jumping, leaped from the cart and rolled over a slight embankment. Hardly had they touched the ground, when the locomotive struck the wagon. It was smashed into kindling wood, and the horse was thrown twenty feet and killed. The girls were badly bruised. They were taken home in a carriage, suffering from fright.

BRIDGE TRUSTEES JOINED.

May Not Surrender the Plaza to the Brooklyn Heights Trolley Company.

Arthur J. Hughes, a Brooklyn taxpayer, yesterday obtained from Justice Osborne, of the Supreme Court, a temporary injunction forbidding the Bridge Trustees to surrender Liberty street and the Bridge plaza to the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company. The latter is also made a defendant, and has twenty days in which to file an answer.

In his petition Mr. Hughes, through General Almet P. Jones, his counsel, refers to the fact that the company which sold a large share of the plaza site to the Bridge Trustees is practically the same as the company which is asking for the gift of the whole plaza. He declares that Mr. Howell and Mr. Keeney, Bridge Trustees, are shareholders in the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company, and that Mr. Keeney is one of the directors of it. Messrs. Howell and Keeney, he declared, had urged the grant of the plaza as a depot and switch yard.
Their action in attempting to influence the Trustees in this manner, he says, is a legal fraud and a violation of their duties as Trustees.

WOES OF THE SOLOMONS.

Frequent Visits of a Friend, It Is Said, Caused Two Suits.

Mrs. Anna M. Solomon, who is suing for a separation from Samuel M. Solomon, of No. 103 Boerum place, Brooklyn, yesterday, applied to the Supreme Court for alimony and counsel fees. The couple were married only two years ago, and lived first on Pleasant avenue, New York, and then at No. 237 Jamaica avenue, Long Island City.
According to Solomon, a mutual friend, William G. Southgate, began to call at the house. His visits were so numerous that Mr. Solomon told him he would be pleased to have him remain, and he requested Archibald E. D. Cooper to urge Southgate to abandon his visits. Dr. Cooper refused to interfere, and Solomon began suit against Southgate for, as alleged, alienating Mrs.
Solomon's affections. Southgate then went to the Supreme Court to call on at the decision was reserved.

Brooklyn to Belle M. Forrest from Charles W. Forrest; Barbara Woerner from Louis Woerner; Lizzie Hart, from Charles Hart, and Mary Hillgartner, from John J. G. Hillgartner.

Bridge Trustees Fail to Meet.

The Bridge Trustees did not meet yesterday because of the lack of a quorum, only four being present. They were President Howell, Seth L. Keeney, Comptroller Fitch and John J. Carlin. They started for attorneys' until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

"FRAUD!" SAID SHE. "CYCLOPE!" SAID HE.

Suit of Mugford vs. Mugford on Trial in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn.

Fair Plaintiff Says Her Husband Dazzled Her with Stories of His Immense Wealth.

WANTS THE MARRIAGE ANNULLED.

Mugford Says He Never Was Guilty of Exaggeration, and Accuses His Wife of Acting Like a Cyclone in His House.

Mrs. Mary H. Mugford began a suit in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday to have her marriage to Henry L. Mugford, the aged builder, annulled.

Mrs. Mugford is of the opinion that she was deceived by Mr. Mugford. She had an idea that he was a sort of a Monte-Christo. During the courtship, which was brief but ardent, he dazzled Mrs. Mugford then a lonely widow, by his display of promissory notes, bonds, mortgages, and deeds to property in New York, Brooklyn and Denver, so she says.

She married Mr. Mugford in November, 1894. For a week her married life was "one grand, sweet song." The discovery that Mugford's daughter, Mrs. Fanny J.
Hovey, had the title to fifteen of his houses alarmed Mrs. Mugford.

She protested, and had her face slapped, she says. This was followed by her eject-ment from the house, No. 875 Putnam avenue. Mrs. Mugford had her husband arrested.

Aided by friends, Mrs. Mugford secured possession of the upper part of the house; while the old gentleman held the lower part. The apartments were barricaded for over a week.

The defendant denied all that his wife charged in her complaint. He charges her with having married him because of his supposed wealth, which he never exaggerated. When she learned that his property was in his daughter's name, she changed her angelic tactics, and became a perfect siren, says Mr. Mugford.

He alleges that Mrs. Mugford acted like a cyclone before she left his home to go to Connecticut. She slashed the carpet, sprinkled acid around the stove, scratched the furniture, and scattered ashes on the floor, he declares.

The hearing was postponed until tomorrow.

Mrs. Mugford is also suing Mugford for $25,000 for misrepresentation of himself before their marriage, as she contends. She has instituted a suit against Mrs. Hovey for malicious prosecution.

BROKER ACCUSED OF ABDUCTING A GIRL.

Edward Robertson Arrested on Complaint of Relatives of Lulu Shelley.

He Declared That He Had Merely Acted as Her Protector When She Appealed to Him.

CHARGE WITHDRAWN IN COURT.

The Girl Said That She Had Fled from Her Sister's Home Because She Had Been Severely Beaten with a Heavy Strap.

Edward Robertson, a broker, who lives in bachelor apartments at No. 128 West Sixty-seventh street, was a prisoner in Yorkville Police Court yesterday on a charge of abduction. The complainants arrest. They learned where the girl was, and she was also taken in charge.

Pelkotto said that he did not wish to press the complaint. He thought that since Robertson was on visiting terms with his family, he should have notified them at once about the girl.

"There is no evidence of criminal intent," said the magistrate. "From what has been told me, it appears that the girl sought the man, and not the man the girl. This charge is not pressed by the complainant, and I shall discharge the defendant."

Mrs. Pelkotto, when seen later at her home, said:

"My sister Lulu met Robertson through his being introduced to us by a mutual friend. We shall send her to a boarding school out of the city at once. In fact, her trunks were packed for her departure before his unfortunate arrest. It is true we punished her, but not in the way she says. She fell down and possibly scratched or bruised her neck because he had asked her to do so the last time they met."

"I am not sure that she had fled from her sister's home because she had been severely beaten with a heavy strap. She came to me hysterical and excited, and I had to decide on the spur of the moment just what to do. I had never asked her or desired her to come to my rooms, but when she threatened to harm my protection I did my best to care for her."

BATHERS' CATCH OF FISH.

Three Thousand Spanish Mackerel Chased by Bluefish Invasade Fire Island and 500 Are Caught.

Women and men in bathing costumes and in walking dress fought with 3,000 Spanish mackerel on the Fire Island beach Sunday afternoon. There was a great crowd of Summer visitors down from the hotels that line the coast. The bathers were more numerous than they have been usually this Summer, and when the first influx of mackerel stampeded them those on the beach and some in the water set up the cry of "Shuck!"

The real trouble was soon apparent. The enormous school of beautiful fish swam into the shallow water, and some even went so high up that they were caught by men and boys, who, regardless of shoes and stockings, floundered into the water and grabbed for prizes. Many women and girls were equally unmindful of attire, but less fortunate in their endeavors to catch them.

The cause of the arrival of the fish was the attack of the larger school of bluefish, hungry and vicious. The bluefish soon left and the mackerel got away as fast as they could. The total catch for the beach footed up nearly 500 mackerel and a half dozen bluefish. Many of these were left on the beach, but the hotels got the best of them.

NEAR A DWELLING HOUSE.

Therefore the License of a Brooklyn Saloon Keeper Was Revoked by the Supreme Court.

Joseph Samuelly, saloon keeper, of No.
108 Union avenue, Brooklyn, had his license revoked by the Supreme Court yesterday at the request of a number of property owners. They took the ground that the saloon's existence was a violation of the law because it was within 200 feet of a building used exclusively as a dwelling.

Samuelly said the law was all right, but he did not apply to him, as the store was occupied as a saloon by Philip Balzer before the law was enacted. The petitioners answered this by proving that Balzer went out of business in April. The store was vacant two months before Samuelly again opened it as a saloon.

Justice Osborne said he must order the revocation of the license. The fact that the place was once used as a saloon did not, he said, entitle Samuelly to exemption from the law bearing on the subject. Sam-uelly may appeal the case.

"FARMER BOY" WHIPPED.

Gussie Leonard, Actor, Thrashed and Choked After Trying to Shoot His Sister's Alleged Trudger.

Newton, N. J., July 20.—Gussie Leonard, who travelled with the "Old Homestead" company last season, when she played the role of the farmer boy, this evening engaged in a quarrel with her sister, who lived in a place, whom he claims had insulted his sister. He was badly worsted, after trying to shoot Kischpaugh.

In the heat of the controversy Leonard ran into Foster's bookstore and purchased a revolver and cartridges. Following Kischpaugh, he approached him with the weapon levelled, saying: "I am going to shoot you for that."

Kischpaugh, with a dexterous movement, wrenched the revolver from Leonard's hand and then gave him a severe thrashing and choked him until he was unconscious.
Doctors Hamilton and Vorhees worked over Leonard about ten minutes when he recovered and was taken to his hotel. No arrests have been made.

WIFE FAINTED IN COURT.

Was Telling the Justice How Lichtenberger Had Treated Her.

William Lichtenberger, a German employed on the steamer St. Paul, has been captured in Brooklyn after eluding the police for nearly two months. He abandoned his wife last May, after leading her a life of misery.

On June 1 Mrs. Lichtenberger obtained a warrant for her husband's arrest. A policeman who saw the man on Bridge street tried to capture him, but he got away and entered a house near by. The policeman searched for Lichtenberger, but was disappointed. He caught one of those fellows by jumping from the third-story window.

Yesterday the prisoner was arrested at his mother's house, No. 70 Union street, and arraigned before Justice Teale. Mrs.
Lichtenberger said her husband had not given her a penny in six years. While she was telling her story she fainted and was carried to the Justice's room. The prisoner was held.

AHLGREN'S FATAL DRAUGHT.

Out of Work, He Drank Poison in a Glass of Liquor.

Despondent over the loss of his business, Carl Ahlgren, a thirty-year-old German, took his life. He is buried in the Catholic cemetery at No. 1 North Pier, Atlantic Dock, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon and swallowed a draught of poison in a glass of liquor. He was in the Long Island College Hospital last night.

Ahlgren was forty years old and until three months ago was a repair shop at No.
242 Hamilton avenue. He was an expert machinist, and lived contentedly with his wife and three children.

But when three months ago his store was gutted by fire the loss was keenly felt by Ahlgren and his wife, there being no insurance on the place. Since that time the machinist had been seeking employment, but with no success. Last night he gave up the struggle. His wife and three children are destitute.

HELD THE CERTIFICATE.

Saloon Keeper Fined for Refusing to Give It to a Receiver.

Riverhead, L. I., July 20.—Maurice Squire, of Port Jefferson, a saloon keeper, was recently forced to close his place on account of business troubles. An execution was issued against him, but the judgment could not be collected. Squire took out a Ralnes warrant, and when Ernest W. Tooker, who was appointed receiver, went to the saloon to carry on the business Squire would not give him the certificate.

He claimed that under the law the certificate could not be taken from him, as it was made out in his name and he was not a debtor to business under it. Tooker had him examined in supplementary proceedings and to-day he was fined $15 by County Judge Beebe for failing to give the certificate. He says that he will deliver the certificate now, but has retained Lawyer Rosen, of Port Jefferson, who will make an appeal.
